WE'RE IN THE MIDST OF MERCURY RETROGRADE WAIT... WHAT IS THAT, EXACTLY?

By Maria DeSimone | TAROT.COM

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN! From May 18 through June 11, Mercury, the planet of communication, commerce, and transportation, is in retrograde, which means it looks like the planet's going backward. This time Mercury will retrograde in one of the signs it rules: chatty social Gemini. As a result, it's possible that the usual Mercury Retrograde mishaps might become more of a nuisance.

Remember that after Mercury begins to move forward again, or "turns direct," whatever communications-related project you have going on will likely shine due to the work you put into it now.

Since Mercury and Gemini are also connected to siblings and your neighborhood, watch out for misunderstandings between you and a brother or sister or neighbor.

There might be some type of frustrating situation that happens in your neighborhood over the next few weeks and if so, you'll need to be patient. Roadwork or some other situation that makes commuting in your area more frustrating is possible.

And lastly, all major purchases are best put off until after Mercury is direct, but car repairs or issues might be extra problematic now.

Hang in there! Read your sign's Mercury Retrograde Horoscope to learn how you can maximize the benefits of this phase while minimizing the frustrations...

ARIES

March 21 - April 19

Do your best to diffuse any dicey situation between you and a sibling. Assume that one of you is not armed with the correct information and perspective, and remember that your relationship is more important than whatever issue the two of you can't agree on is about. If you have a short trip planned, make sure your car is serviced properly beforehand to avoid car trouble.

TAURUS

April 20 - May 20

You may also be more confused than usual about a financial matter. Perhaps you'll have a choice to make about which one of your revenue streams to pay extra attention to and put a greater focus on. You might wonder if you'll need to give up one way you earn money for another. Allocating your time and carefully evaluating where your best return is will be called for.

GEMINI

May 21 - June 20

You're ruled by Mercury and since Mercury will retrograde in your sign, whatever you say can and will be held against you. Try your very best to take this potential with a grain of salt and a good sense of humor. Expect to feel misunderstood or misrepresented, and do your best to come across as honestly as possible in conversations. If you can't make up your mind about a situation, be honest about that fact. It's better than confusing someone you care about by flip-flopping around the issue.

CANCER

June 21 - July 22

If you're a writer or in the communication arts, your imagination might require extra time alone in order to create your best work during Mercury Retrograde. Allow yourself plenty of time in solitude to jot down ideas, brainstorm or to rework an important draft. You might realize that you're flow of thoughts or ideas are blocked due

LEO

July 23 - Aug. 22

A miscommunication between you and a friend is possible during this Mercury Retrograde phase, but if this happens it'll likely trigger you to reconsider the bigger picture of your social life. Are you still compatible with the people inside your circle? Or are you veering off into a different direction with different acquaintances? Be honest with yourself and realize that you don't have to completely disconnect from one set of friends in order to explore new interests. Just reprioritize your social time.

VIRGO

Aug. 23 - Sept. 22

You might feel like you and your boss or another VIP are crossing

DOS AND DON'TS FOR MERCURY RETROGRADE

By Maria DeSimone | TARDOT.COM

There is one golden rule when it comes to Mercury Retrograde phases. All you need to remember is that during any Mercury Retrograde cycle, if you're doing something that begins with "re" such as reassess, revise, revisit, reconnect, re-do, recall, re-say, refresh, you're right on track.

Here's a top list of Dos and Don'ts that will help you navigate any Mercury Retrograde phase.

DON'T INITIATE; DO FINISH WHAT YOU'VE STARTED:

No matter how fantastic your new plan may be, hold off on the launch while Mercury is trekking backwards. There's a high probability that you're missing crucial information or that whatever you pitch to others isn't going to sound as phenomenal to them as it does to you. Usually, it's best to not start a new job, get married or begin a new financial chapter in your life now. Polish up your resume, plan your wedding or research investments instead.

DON'T PURCHASE BIG TICKET ITEMS; DO COMPARISON SHOP:

You should not purchase any big ticket item such as a car, computer, appliance or even a piece of jewelry during Mercury's retrograde for several reasons. First, if it has moving or electronic parts, there's a good chance that you'll find a glitch. Repairs are fine (and a perfect prefix) on existing equipment ... however no one should have to repair a brand new item!

DON'T MAKE LIFE ALTERING DECISIONS. DO RENEGOTIATE, MEDIATE AND RECONSIDER EXISTING ONES:

If at all possible, avoid new agreements! Because once you sign the dotted line or give that handshake, you will likely find that a series of events or misunderstandings cause the initial pact to change or fall apart. Instead, this is a good time to consider a renegotiation.

DON'T HIDE UNDER A ROCK; DO EXPECT DELAYS AND SNAFUS:

Preparation and patience are key during Mercury Retrograde cycles. If, for example, you have a trip planned and you notice it's during a Mercury Retrograde, don't cancel your plans and stop living! Instead, consider the added potential for mishaps and prepare accordingly.

signals a bit too often. Don't assume that this person is downplaying your ideas or doesn't value them. It might be a matter of how you're presenting information. What about a different approach? This is the time to consider how being more open to change in communication can actually be the catalyst that'll take you to the next level professionally.

LIBRA

Sept. 23 - Oct. 22

If you're in school studying for an advanced degree, license, or certification, it's possible that your brain will literally hurt over the next few weeks as you try to assimilate some difficult material. Consider hiring a tutor. If you are willing to put in the extra time to master whatever it is you're studying, then you can be sure you'll ace your upcoming exam. Also, if you plan on traveling during this time, allow extra time for potential delays. Double-check to ensure you've packed all important items and documentation.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23 - Nov. 21

There might be some frustrating financial paperwork to go through or a delay in processing paperwork you're counting on for a loan, line of credit, or mortgage. Remain patient if you find yourself mired in this type of red tape over the next few weeks. Trust that it will get resolved and that any delay may actually work out to be in your best interests. This gives you time to research other options. Avoid new investments during this time.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22 - Dec. 21

You and your partner might begin to feel as if you're each on a different planet when you try to reach an agreement about an important matter, which will call attention to any weak links in your ability to speak and listen to one another. Collaboration is possible, but only if you each understand what the other person wants and needs. You might think it's one thing, but unless you get clarification from your mate, you might be disappointed to realize it's something else entirely.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

You may find that more of your assignments come back to you from your supervisor with requests for revision. Be patient if this happens and see it as an opportunity to improve your efficiency and overall productivity. Paperwork might seem endless during this time but again, this is your chance to prove just how organized you can be. If there's any miscommunication between you and a coworker, try to resolve it as best you see fit. Remind yourself that two minds are better than one.

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

If you notice that you're thinking more and more about an ex-lover, the temptation to contact him or her might be strong during this time. If you're connected on social media or live in the same neighborhood, don't be surprised if your paths cross over the next few weeks. Sure, sparks may fly, but before you jump back into a relationship that wasn't right the first time around, take time to remember what went wrong in the first place. Unless there has been a dramatic change, a second chance might only lead to further disappointment.

PISCES

Feb. 19 - Mar. 20

Relatives you haven't heard from might come out of the woodwork over the next few weeks. You may enjoy rekindling the connection between yourself and these family members. In fact, it'll be a great time to organize a family reunion or other gathering. You might also notice a stronger interest in looking back to your family's past. Studying your roots or genealogy will be quite rewarding during this time.

Animal cruelty charges for walker who kicked dog

By Greg Trotter | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

A Portage Park man was charged with misdemeanor animal cruelty Thursday after a vicious dog-kicking incident at a West Loop apartment building that was captured by an elevator's security camera.

Jonathon Stenholt, 39, was arrested Thursday and charged after being identified as the person who kicked the dog in the 100 block of North Desplaines Street.

In the footage, the man, affiliated with the company Alone at Home Pet Care, appears to step on and then kick the small beagle, which tries to escape.

Police responded to a call of animal abuse about 11:40 a.m. Tuesday, a police spokesman said. Upon arrival, the building's security staff showed the video to officers, who advised the staff to have the dog's owner, who wasn't present at the time, follow up with a police report if she wished to pursue the matter.

The dog owner confirmed the validity of the video Thursday but otherwise declined to comment or be named.

In an email to other Alone at Home Pet Care clients Wednesday, which was obtained by the Tribune, she wrote: "I am extremely upset about this incident and the fact that I trusted [the dog walker] to come into my home and care for my dog. ... I felt that I had to share this video with all of you due to extreme concern for the safety of your animals."

Jim Cunningham, chief operating officer of Marquette Companies, which manages the apartment building, said the man in the video will no longer be allowed to care for animals at buildings managed by Marquette.

"The great thing about this is the door staff noticed something was wrong and reported it to the resident," he said.

Terrier stolen from West Loop building turned in at shelter: owner

By Liam Ford | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The owner of a West Highland white terrier stolen from a West Loop apartment last week said the dog was turned in Wednesday afternoon to a North Side shelter.

Barnaby was turned in at PAWS Chicago, 1997 N. Clybourn Ave., on Wednesday afternoon after someone spotted a man who looked like the burglar who had stolen the dog from Adam Johnston's West Loop apartment about 1:20 p.m. May 18, Johnston said in a text message.

Someone saw a man who looked like the burglar at a local pet supply store Wednesday afternoon and tried to get a cellphone photo of him, but he immediately left the store, Johnston said in a post on his Find Barnaby

"We think maybe the suspect was spooked at having been recognized, but really don't know for sure," according to the post.

Surveillance video released by Johnston shows someone going into the apartment building through a garage door and leaving a few minutes later with the dog. The victim called police about 5 p.m. May 18 to report he had discovered his apartment had been broken into and his dog stolen, police said.

Barnaby, who is 6½ years old, had just been returned to Johnston's apartment by a dog walker, Johnston said.

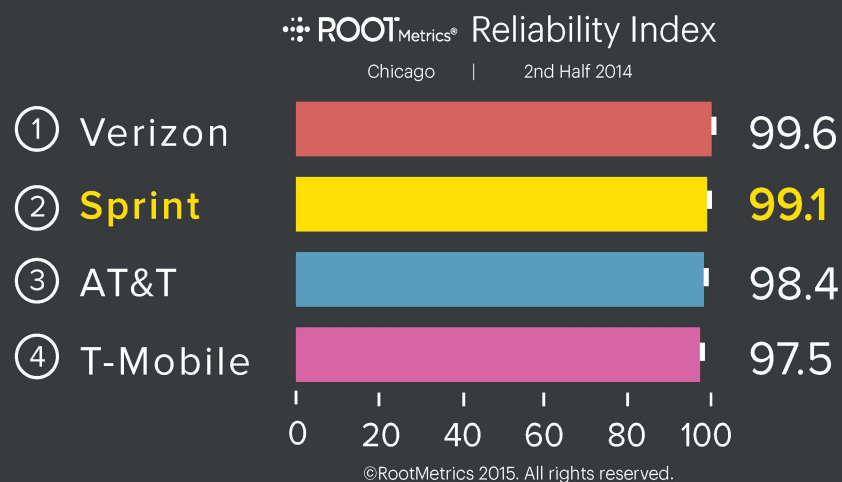

Anyone with information about the theft is asked to call 911 or Area Central detectives at 312-747-8380.

$3.5 million

Former U.S. House Speaker Dennis Hastert agreed to pay $3.5 million in apparent hush money to a longtime acquaintance, then lied to the FBI when asked about suspicious cash withdrawals from several banks, federal prosecutors alleged Thursday. Hastert was House speaker for eight years and has been working as a lobbyist in Washington since stepping down from office in 2008.

June 24

Boston Marathon bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev will be formally sentenced to death on June 24. A jury determined earlier this month that Tsarnaev should get the death penalty in the 2013 attack, in which three people were killed and more than 260 were injured when Tsarnaev and his brother placed two pressure-cooker bombs near the marathon finish line.

Army chief: Human error likely not cause of anthrax mistake

The U.S. Army's top general said Thursday that human error probably was not a factor in the Army's mistaken shipment of live anthrax samples from a chemical weapons testing site in Utah to labs in at least nine states across the U.S. and to an Army lab in South Korea. Gen. Ray Odierno told reporters the problem may have been a failure in the process of killing, or inactivating, anthrax samples.

Bulls head coach Tom Thibodeau yells at his players at a game at the United Center in April.
CHRIS SWEDA/TRIBUNE

BULLS, THIBODEAU JUST COULDN'T MAKE IT WORK ANYMORE—IS HOIBERG UP NEXT?

By Teddy Greenstein
and K.C. Johnson | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The Bulls fired coach Tom Thibodeau on Thursday despite two years and roughly $9 million remaining on his deal, with general manager Gar Forman citing a need for “a culture of communication that builds a trust throughout this organization.”

A telling moment during an afternoon “Goodbye, Thibs” news conference at the United Center came when Bulls vice president of basketball operations John Paxson summarized the reasoning behind Thibodeau’s dismissal as Forman, sitting to his left, nodded in agreement.

“You have to have a situation where you are all pulling in the same direction,” Paxson said. “Once that stops, it’s very difficult to move forward.”

Seconds later, Paxson added: “We probably wouldn’t be sitting here if we won a championship”—a nod to the realities of pro sports: No matter how difficult a player or coach is to work with, winning cures all.

Thibodeau released a statement Thursday.

“I want to thank, and will deeply miss, our incredible fans and the entire city of Chicago,” he said. “I also want to thank my staff and all of the talented players and their wonderful families who have honored me and the Bulls by their effort, love, dedication and professionalism. ... We are proud of our many accomplishments, fought through adversity, and tried to give our fans the full commitment to excellence they deserve.”

But the Bulls didn’t win in the postseason under Thibodeau, who was removed after five seasons. The team’s performance in the second-round loss to the Cavaliers was particularly galling, given that Cleveland played without Kevin Love and with a hobbled Kyrie Irving.

“We were all really disappointed in the way the season ended,” Paxson said. “Cleveland is a great team and they’re in the Finals. But we felt like, given their injuries, the path was there for us if we could have seized it.”

Forman said Bulls management “dug deep” before coming to a decision Wednesday night and informing Thibodeau on Thursday morning.

They considered the team’s overall performance, exit interviews with players, Thibodeau’s reluctance to adhere to minutes restrictions and, perhaps most significantly, the coach’s cantankerous personality, which turned off numerous facets of the organization.

“Relationships are difficult,” Paxson said. “But there has to be a situation with open dialogue, where there are no barriers. You should be able to ask any question, push the envelope. That’s what relationships should be about. Obviously there was a breakdown.”

Forman said the search for Thibodeau’s replacement will end “when we find the right guy ... whether that’s a day, a week, a month or two months.”

• redeye@redye.chicgo.com

The speculation surrounding Tom Thibodeau's departure from the Bulls came to fruition Thursday when the team announced the firing of the 21st coach in franchise history. This, of course, has been brewing for more than a year.

In that time, the relationship between the coach, the front office and—depending on whom you ask—the players had deteriorated to the point that the rift was virtually impossible to repair. That much was apparent in the team's statement, with the portion penned by Bulls chairman Jerry Reinsdorf being especially telling.

Without being specific, Reinsdorf said Thibodeau had broken organizational trust. You can interpret that in a variety of ways: From Jeff Van Gundy's pro-Thibs rant on national TV, to the column on Yahoo Sports that painted Thibodeau as almost a sympathetic figure while blaming management, at least partially, for the team failing to live up to expectations.

But if we're pointing fingers at Thibodeau for breaking trust, then we also have to hold the franchise accountable.

The anti-Derrick Rose sentiment in Chicago started when someone inside the Bulls organization leaked that he had been medically cleared to play less than a year after his ACL injury. Rose's decision not to take the court created a backlash the former MVP has never been able to overcome, even in his own hometown.

Let us also not forget the infamous scuffle that took place between John Paxson and Vinny Del Negro, or the spinal tap Luol Deng underwent in the midst of a playoff run while the team announced he'd only had the flu.

And we can't gloss over the fact that Iowa State's Fred Hoiberg has been the presumed front-runner for the Bulls coaching job for at least six months, even though the team had a coach on the payroll.

All these incidents reek of a breach of organizational trust, regardless of who is at fault or to blame for the information being released publicly.

The Bulls are up there with the Boston Celtics and L.A. Lakers as the NBA's most iconic franchises, and their history of consistently putting a good product on the floor is unmistakable. But unlike the Celtics and the Lakers, the Bulls have a history of not keeping internal matters private.

BRYAN CRAWFORD IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Several sources believe the search essentially already has ended, and that Iowa State coach Fred Hoiberg will get the job.

Of the criteria, Forman said: "We're not going to put ourselves in a box and say: 'Had to have been a head coach, had to have been an assistant, what level they coached on.' We are going to look for the right fit, someone that can lead, someone that can communicate at a high level and has a great knowledge of the game. Experience is a plus. If they have been a head coach, ever more so."

Thibodeau won Coach of the Year honors in his first season in 2010-11 and went 255-139 for a .647 regular-season winning percentage in his five seasons, becoming the fastest coach to 100 victories in NBA history.

Mayor Emanuel was asked about the move but declined to give his opinion. Yet he made it clear he holds the coach in high regard.

"There's a lot I'd like to unburden myself on, but I'll say this: I've been in regular conversation over the past weeks with Coach T, and I think he's a great coach," said Emanuel, who has spoken in the past about his appreciation for Thibodeau's work ethic and attention to detail.

RANKS UNDER THIBODEAU

The Bulls were consistently among the best defensive teams in the NBA and mediocre at best on offense under Tom Thibodeau, as illustrated in their in points per game and points allowed each season.

1	What's the BEST part about a Blackhawks Game 7?	We get to send our boys to sunny California!	There is no greater two-word combination in sports than "Game 7."	Doesn't matter. I may have to write about it no matter what.	It's a weekend game, so bring on triple overtime!	I got nothing. It's GAME 7. HOW FREAKIN' AWESOME IS THAT?
2	What's the WORST part about a Blackhawks Game 7?	We don't get to go with them... and they're in enemy territory.	Oh, I don't know, biting off all my fingernails, pulling out my hair, getting an ulcer?	See No. 1	Sunday's hangover from drinking too much in celebration or sadness.	My wallet and liver are going to get checked into the boards.
3	How can you tell when Corey Crawford is "pretty pumped"?	When he has that gassed up look on his face. You know the one... toot toot!	When Scott Darling isn't in the net.	He's not falling all over the place.	His clothes rip, his skin turns green and he grows by 25 percent. Wait. Maybe I have him confused with the Hulk.	When he busts out his ever so slight "Hans and Franz" accent out on the ice.
4	What can the Cubs learn from the defending AL champion Royals this weekend?	WIN MORE GAMES! DO BETTER!	How to close your eyes and remember the good times, since KC is currently on a four-game losing streak.	Send the runner from third.	That even if you win your division you can still lose it all.	How to properly hate the team on the South Side.
5	Whom would you hire to clean up FIFA?	Consuela from "Family Guy." She'll "Lemon Pledge" the hell out of FIFA!	Roger Goodell.	Cookie Lyon. She doesn't mess around.	Ninety percent of Americans just found out what FIFA is. Why clean it up? Nice marketing move.	Not my son. He HAS to be cheating at "FIFA 15" ... or maybe I just stink?

Bears' second-guessing shouldn't stop here

SACKED AGAIN

Bag Boy

» redeye@redeye
chicago.com

Well, at least someone around here is questioning himself.

Hats off to George McCaskey, who came clean and was honest with the media.

Good for him, I say. But we're second-guessing the wrong problem.

You see, the Bears suffer from what I call "empty cupboard syndrome," or ECS as it's known in the medical community.

It goes like this. Team looks around. Team discovers, uh-oh, it has no real talent at many positions.

Team then decides it can overlook many "deficiencies" in character and lapses in judgment to bring some talent on board.

So while we're all second-guessing, let's second-guess the Bears organization for having no one to really rush the passer, which is what Ray McDonald would have done.

And I mean no one. So thanks, Phil Emery, for that wonderful pick of Shea McClellin. Thanks to those moves, the Bears had to take a shot at McDonald.

And just know that as long as there's no talent, guys like Ray McDonald will always be there for the taking.

For the record, though, if I need a job, I'm going right to George McCaskey. I mean, come on. The guy had a face-to-face meeting with McDonald and was duped!

That means, for me, anything is possible. If I could just get in front of him, I think I could talk myself into the GM position. Seriously.

The Blackhawks should also be second-guessing themselves. Someone needs to go "Man, next time, let's pay up for some defense!"

Good call. Also, I second-guess the "Let's let Anaheim get up by three and then go crazy" strategy. That almost never works. Quit trying it.

And finally, let's all second-guess the White Sox.

Robin Ventura, I'm afraid it's time to go. "No, wait! You can't have change for change's sake!" you say.

"Don't worry, we're doing it for sanity's sake" would be my response. That's because something big is missing.

Some call it chemistry. I call it a pulse.

Adam Eaton isn't producing, and Adam LaRoche merely took Adam Dunn's place as strikeout leader.

Um, 1-Adam 12, come in please, the White Sox are hideous.

Unlucky 7s?

Hawks, Ducks both struggle in winner-take-all showdowns

RedEye

As exciting as Game 7s in the NHL playoffs are, they have been unkind to the Blackhawks in the Jonathan Toews-Patrick Kane era. Still, as they prepare for Game 7 of the Western Conference finals at Anaheim on Saturday, the Hawks hope it is to their advantage that they have succeeded in pressure situations.

"When we realize our season's on the line, we kind of think back to everything that went into us getting to this point, we realize the opportunity we have, the group that we have, throw everything in the mix," Toews said. "That's your motivation right there, to go throw everything at them."

Here's how the Hawks' recent Game 7s have played out.

APRIL 26, 2011

Conference quarterfinals

Vancouver 2, Blackhawks 1

The heartbreaker: Alexandre Burrows, who scored both Canucks goals that night. This after Toews tied it for the Hawks with a shorthanded goal in the waning moments of regulation. The loss denied the Hawks a Stanley Cup repeat.

MAY 29, 2013

Conference semifinals

Blackhawks 2, Detroit 1

The hero: Brent Seabrook, though it could have been Niklas Hjalmarsson, who had a late goal disallowed under confusing circumstances. The Hawks went on to win their second Cup in four seasons.

JUNE 1, 2014

Conference finals

Los Angeles 5, Blackhawks 4

The heartbreaker: Alec Martinez. The Hawks led for a large chunk of this game and nearly capped a comeback from a 3-1 series deficit before faltering. Once again, they were denied a Cup repeat.

"At the end of it that was the toughest loss of probably our lives," Hawks coach Quenneville said Wednesday of that loss to the Kings. "That's what we'll take out of it."

ON THE OTHER HAND ...

Anaheim has had its own struggles in Game 7s, and with closing out series in general.

0-3

The Ducks' record in Game 7s since winning the 2007 Stanley Cup, with two of those losses coming at home.

0-4

In the past two postseasons, Anaheim led series against Detroit and L.A. 3-2, only to lose Games 6 and 7 in both cases.

1-5

Ducks coach Bruce Boudreau's record in home Game 7s. Two of those losses have come with the Ducks and the other three while he was Washington's coach.

"I think last year's Game 7, we were just a bunch of nervous Nellies," Boudreau said Wednesday of the Ducks' loss to Los Angeles in the 2014 conference semifinals. "Hopefully that happened in Game 6 [against the Hawks] and won't carry over to Game 7."

A mass of sappy cliches

By Elise De Los Santos | REDEYE

Yes, the host of “The Bachelor” and “The Bachelorette” wrote a novel.

And yes, of course it’s a romance novel.

“The Perfect Letter,” whose release last week coincided with the Season 11 premiere of “The Bachelorette” on ABC, centers around Leigh Merrill, who seems to have it all. The Harvard graduate is a book editor at a major New York publishing company, she has just completed “the biggest publishing coup this side of J.D. Salinger” by getting a reclusive author to publish his first book in 30 years and she’s in a serious relationship with fellow editor Joseph, who’s from old East Coast money but isn’t too much of a dick.

But then Leigh’s invited to Austin, Texas, to give the keynote address at a writers’ conference. She hasn’t been home in nearly a decade, and the mystery of her past quickly unfolds along with a stack of letters left in her hotel room—half of them written by her during her college years to her childhood sweetheart Jake, the other half Jake’s responses that he never sent.

Through the letters and flashback chapters, the details of a court case and scandal that involved both Jake and Leigh 10 years ago and ultimately separated them slowly come to light—though, anyone who has seen a courtroom drama on TV likely will guess what that was all about before the big reveal about a third of the way into the book.

That’s because “The Perfect Letter” is a mass of romantic drama cliches. It’s 50 shades of Nicholas Sparks (though in all fairness, Harrison attributes Sparks’ influence on his writing in his acknowledgements).

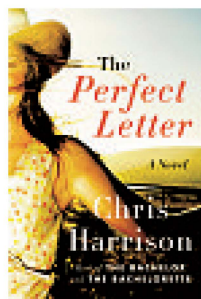

From the city girl returning to her rural roots, to the flashbacks of an all-consuming teenage romance, to the stack of unread letters, to the childhood sweetheart-vs.-current-boyfriend love triangle, it’s all been said and done dozens, if not hundreds, of times before.

And yet, while it was a book I had no trouble setting down whenever something more interesting was happening (so, whenever anything else was happening), I didn’t have to force myself to keep reading either. There’s a reason Nicholas Sparks books are almost guaranteed best-sellers. There’s a reason sappy romances grace movie screens year in and year out. There’s a reason there’s been 19 seasons of “The Bachelor” and 11 seasons of “The Bachelorette.”

With its unsurprising twists and turns, “The Perfect Letter” gives readers exactly what they expect. If you’re looking for light, quick reading that doesn’t waste too many brain cells, you could do much worse—even if you can guess the ending of the novel from the very first page.

We tried it ... Nitro coffee at Beatrix

By Morgan Olsen | REDEYE

It's the most wonderful time of the year: iced coffee season. As temperatures creep up, our favorite caffeinated treats are mixed with ice and served with a straw. Just in time, the coffee bar at River North restaurant Beatrix (519 N. Clark St. 312-284-1377) recently added a can't-miss drink to their menu: nitro coffee

The cold-brew beverage involves a keg and a lot of science. Brewed coffee is blast-chilled, poured into a keg, infused with nitrogen for 48 hours and dispensed through a tap—kind of like a Guinness stout. That's not the only thing it has in common with the brewski; nitro coffee boasts a foamy head, creamy taste and lots of tiny bubbles.

The nitro coffee trend is bubbling up in other cities around the country, but hasn't yet caught on in Chicago. Heritage Bicycles, a bike and coffee shop in Lakeview, served nitro coffee for a short time more than a year ago. "We did it for a few months, but we couldn't get the right recipe down. It's tricky," owner Michael Salvatore said. "It's a great drink—so smooth. [I had it at] Stumptown's cafe in New York and I immediately knew I wanted it at my cafe." Salvatore continues to experiment and plans to put it back on the menu when he lands on a recipe he's happy with, he said.

"Our coffee program has always been a big part of what we've done at Beatrix since day one," Beatrix manager John Economos said. "When we heard that places were doing nitro coffee, we didn't really know of any places in Chicago that were doing it and we wanted to be able to bring it to Chicago and use one of the local roasters."

Beatrix teamed up with MicroMatic, a company that specializes in draft keg beer-dispensing equipment, to outfit its River North coffee bar. MicroMatic built the kegerator that houses and dispenses the specialty blend. Economos said they keep five or six kegs on hand at all times to meet demand.

Unlike beer, nitro coffee packs a caffeine punch—like, TKO-style. Economos said Beatrix's kegged concoction has three times as much caffeine as a regular drip coffee. The secret? They use Intelligentsia's Black Cat espresso beans to make the drink in-house.

"Being able to have the flavors of Black Cat espresso chilled in a keg with this creamy head of foam is one of the coolest things ever," Economos said. "I'd say it's very similar to drinking a cold-brew ice coffee because the cold brew is usually a little bit stronger."

Economos added that nitro coffee is best enjoyed three to five minutes after it's poured, when the bubbles settle and the flavors are most prominent. His additives of choice are simple syrup and a splash of almond milk, but nitro can be enjoyed plain, too.

Verdict

I was more than a little nervous about the triple-the-caffeine warning label that came with nitro coffee, but then a dreary Thursday rolled around and I couldn't wait to pump my body full of coffee.

First, a few things you should know about Beatrix: It opens at 6 a.m. every morning, has a laidback coffee bar and offers a boatload of drool-worthy pastries (i.e. angel food cake muffins dipped in chocolate). What I'm saying is you totally can pop in before work just like you would at Starbucks.

Back to the nitro. When I ordered the specialty coffee, my barista turned to a draught tower with one spigot. Just like a bartender pouring a Guinness, she slowly filled my cup with a super-dark liquid that came with an impressive amount of foam. Unlike most chilled coffee drinks, this one is served sans ice. While that may seem strange, the drink came out ice-cold and stayed that way throughout my six-block walk to work.

But here's the coolest thing about it: You really don't need cream or sugar. To put this into perspective for you, I typically like my coffee to be the same color as Christina Aguilera's skin circa 2000. I won't go into details, but there's a lot of cream and sugar involved. Because of all the tiny bubbles, nitro coffee tastes sweeter, less acidic and almost creamy. Yay, science!

I got halfway through the 12-ounce serving ($4.25) before I had to pump the brakes and call it quits. The caffeine and full-body flavor filled me up faster than I expected. Though I wish I could order a smaller size, I'll certainly be back for a cup o' jolt in the near future.

Do-Division Street Fest

DO-DIVISION, MAIFEST AND MORE FESTIVALS THIS WEEKEND

By Heather Schroering | REDEYE

Progressive festing (kind of like progressive dining) is highly encouraged this weekend for a healthy dose of art and culture. Start the weekend early on Thursday with German street fest Maifest in Ravenswood (save room for bienenstich cake). Make your way over to the far north for a Pivot Arts Festival performance, then wet your wine whistle at the Lincoln Park Wine Fest. Millennium Park hosts the Gospel Music Festival, and on your way there, walk through more than 100 artists at the Millennium Art Festival. Wrap it up with concerts and street sales at Do-Division in Wicker Park/Ukrainian Village. Or choose your own adventure—read on for all the deets, and check redeyechicago.com/fests for a complete summer schedule.

PIVOT ARTS FESTIVAL

When: May 28–June 7

Where: Various locations throughout Andersonville, Edgewater and Uptown

How much: Free–$20; $45 for all-access passes that covers admission for all events.

Tickets: pivotarts.org/festival

The skinny: Music, theater, dance, spoken word, comedy, puppets—it's all here at this 11-day fest with more than 20 events. Dean Evans, who's performed with The Neo-Futurists and Redmoon, brings back his provocative down act Honeybuns June 4–6 at Uptown Underground ($15; 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 8 p.m. Saturday; 4707 N. Broadway 773-867-1946). See "The Queue," a Lucky Plush Productions play about travelers in an airport becoming involved in each other's personal lives, at Loyola University's Mundelein Center for Fine and Performing Arts May 30 and 31 ($20; 8 p.m. 1020 W. Sheridan Road 773-508-8400). Queer performance art group Baathhaus combines music, dance and visual art at Uptown Underground June 6 ($15; 10 p.m.).

CHICAGO GOSPEL MUSIC FESTIVAL

When: 6:30–9:30 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m.–9:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday

Where: Millennium Park

How much: Free

The skinny: Hear traditional and urban contemporary gospel music from local and national choirs and artists at the 30th annual fest. This year's headliners to perform at the Jay Pritzker Pavilion are choirmaster Ricky Dillard & New G (8:45 p.m. Friday), Grammy award winner Donald Lawrence and Company with a tribute to gospel legends Andrae Crouch and Walter Hawkins (8:10 p.m. Saturday) and contemporary Christian artist Israel Houghton & New Breed (8:45 p.m. Sunday). Two other stages on Saturday and Sunday feature youth choirs, open mics and more local acts. Throughout the weekend, shop vendors with clothing, jewelry and handcrafted items along Randolph Street between Michigan Avenue and Columbus Drive.

Share a photo of your festival adventures (festi-ventures?) on Instagram and Twitter with #ChlFestQuest for a chance to have it featured in RedEye.

DO-DIVISION STREET FEST

When: 5–10 p.m. Friday and noon–10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday

Where: Along Division Street between Damen Avenue and Leavitt Street

How much: $5 suggested donation

The skinny: The Wicker Park/Ukrainian Village fest once again brings both national and international music acts in its ninth consecutive year. Catch Vancouver space rock band Black Mountain on Friday (8:30 p.m. Damen Stage), Tobacco (Black Moth Super Rainbow frontman Thomas Fec's solo project) on Saturday (8:45 p.m. Damen Stage) and English rock band Temples on Sunday (8:45 p.m. Leavitt Stage). Boutiques and artists from the neighborhood set up shop for the 10-block sidewalk sale that stretches from Leavitt Street to Ashland Avenue, including gift shop Elevenzees (1901 W. Division St. 773-772-1150), art boutique One Strange Bird (2124 W. Division St. 773-275-4420) and clothing store Mad Style (1754 W. Division St. 872-829-2750).

Maifest

MAIFEST

When: 5-9 p.m. Thursday, 5-11 p.m. Friday, noon-11 p.m. Saturday, noon-10 p.m. Sunday.

Where: Lincoln and Leland avenues

How much: Free

The skinny: Tradition runs deep at this German celebration of spring including all the best German offerings from beer and sauerkraut to dancing and music. The 16th annual Lincoln Square festival officially opens Friday with a traditional wooden keg tapping (apron and mallet included) from Hofbrauhaus Munich on Friday followed by the crowning of the May Queen (8 p.m.). Bratwurst and other German sausages, pretzels, sauerkraut, potato salad and bienenstich (a custard-filled cake) are on the menu. Partake in traditional German dance at the main tent with waltzes and polkas from Paloma (6 p.m. Friday and 1 p.m. Saturday) and The Phenix (6 p.m. Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday).

LINCOLN PARK WINE FESTIVAL

When: 1-7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Where: Jonquil Playlot Park (1001 W. Wrightwood Ave.)

How much: $60-$100 for general admission; $30 for designated drivers. Buy tickets online at lincolnparkwinefest.com.

The skinny: Taste wines from Spain, Chile and New Zealand to Washington and California at the new Lincoln Park fest, with more than 80 varietals. General admission includes a souvenir glass and 12 1.5-ounce tastings. Both days, three bands provide the soundtrack including classical, jazz and pop quartet Parkwest Strings (1 p.m.), Frank & Dave with both original and classic rock hits (3 p.m.) and Classical Blast (5 p.m.), playing everything from Bach to metal on stringed instruments.

MILLENNIUM ART FESTIVAL

When: 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sunday.

Where: North Michigan Avenue, East Lake Street, East Randolph Street and North Stetson Avenue

How much: Free

The skinny: More than 100 national artists—from painters and ceramics to photographers and glassworkers—gather for the seventh annual art fest in the loop. Local photographer Scott Fishman brings aerial images he captured from skyscrapers and helicopters, and Marelvi Gaxhaj from Milwaukee uses city skylines to create artistic designs on clothing and home accessories.

FEST SURVIVAL TIP 3

Chat with the fine folks behind those vendor tables. Everybody has a story, and whether you're browsing an art bazaar or tasting artisan food or beverages, most vendors want to share theirs. Even if you're just window shopping, ask about their work, find out where they're from and how they got started. You could learn something that you wouldn't have at first glance, making that print, T-shirt or bottle of wine far more special than you initially imagined.

Celebrity-chef dinners set for Taste of Chicago

Taste of Chicago will have a bit of James Beard flavor this year. The Celebrity Chef Du Jour Pavilion—each day featuring a guest chef preparing a three-course, $45 dinner served in an air-conditioned tent on the Taste site—will feature chefs who are a James Beard Foundation Award semi-finalist, nominee or past winner: Tanya Baker of Boarding House (2015 nominee for Rising Star Chef), Thomas Lents of Sixteen (Best Chef: Great Lakes semifinalist), Giuseppe Tentori of GT Fish & Oyster (a multiple Best Chef: Great Lakes semifinalist), Jimmy Bannos Jr. of Purple Pig (2014 winner for Rising Star Chef) and Phillip Foss of El Ideas (multiple Best Chef: Great Lakes semifinalist).

Tickets for the Chef du Jour dinners go on sale Friday at tasteofchicago.us, where you also can find the full list of participating restaurants and food trucks. Taste of Chicago runs July 8-12 in Grand Park and hours will be 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., Wednesday to Friday, and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

—PHIL VETTEL, TRIBUNE

NO RAINBOW CONE THIS YEAR

After 29 straight years at Taste, Original Rainbow Cone will not be participating this year. "We're taking a pass this year," Original Rainbow Cone owner Lynn Sapp said. "We love Taste; it's a great event, but we're looking to do some other things, some expansion, so we just decided to take a year off."

NIGHTCRAWLERS

SEEN ON THE SCENE AT... HARRY'S VELVET ROOM (1430 W. WEBSTER AVE.)

During a recent visit to swanky Lincoln Park hangout Harry's, we found a mix of moviegoers stopping in for a pre-show sip (movie theater Regal Webster Place is right across the street) and fans who remember its first incarnation in River North more than a decade ago. —LEON ANDREW HENSLEY, FOR REDEYE

Jean Giles

36, works in marketing

What brings you out tonight?

This is actually where we came on our first date 11 years ago. But it used to be where Underground is now and it's very different.

What are you drinking tonight and why?

I'm not drinking alcohol tonight, but I would get the paloma or a glass of champagne.

What do you predict will be an obnoxious fashion fad this year?

I saw these men's pants that unzip in the middle. They were once a skirt, but then they still have the legs on the sides. I'm seeing a lot of Carhartt lately. I think that's obnoxious.

What would you like to devote more time to?

Travel. We used to travel a lot. We've been to five continents and we want to visit the last two. So Antarctica and South America are next—Brazil.

Eddy Alexander

29, e-commerce director

What brings you out tonight?

We missed out on a small train of friends having a birthday celebration and found ourselves one bar behind them, so we just ditched out on the whole thing.

What are you drinking tonight and why?

Today's a wine choice, a cabernet sauvignon.

What's your favorite thing to eat at a street fest?

It has to be something on a stick. It doesn't really matter what.

Brent Pruim

27, attorney

What brings you out tonight?

We're actually going to go see "Pitch Perfect 2" across the street.

What are you drinking tonight?

I'm usually a whiskey guy, but in the summer I tend towards tequila.

What's your go-to drunk snack?

I actually haven't drunk-snacked in a while. Probably pizza. I usually just get cheese and I like Hawaiian, but it's hard to find a good Hawaiian.

Schumer as 'The Bachelorette?' Say it ain't so

By Heidi Stevens | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Please say Amy Schumer, patriarchy rabble-rouser, budding movie star and woman crush wonder, isn't seriously considering becoming the next "Bachelorette."

ABC executives floated the idea after Schumer appeared on a recent episode.

The segment was the least funny thing I've seen Schumer do, but plenty of fans loved it, prompting a grass-roots effort to land her as the show's next lovelorn would-be wife, desperate to be a bride, but bereft of the necessary soul mate.

Schumer responded to ABC's tweeted invite with an encouraging, "Here I come!! #bachelorette."

Robert Mills, an ABC senior vice president, tweeted: "#Bachelornation we did it!!!! Dreams do come true. Stay tuned #The Bachelorette," according to Us Weekly.

I sincerely hope she's messing with us. Or ABC. Or both.

And she just might be. On Thursday, when "Bachelorette" producer Mike Fleiss teased that he "will not confirm or deny" a Beverly Hills meeting with Schumer, she responded "ok well I'll deny it. I have [a] show in Boston tonight," Entertainment Weekly reports.

"The Bachelor" and "The Bachelorette," going strong after 19 and 11 seasons, respectively, are two of the most stereotype-laden, woman-shaming, outdated-values-parading-as-edgy shows on television.

In the process of pretending to vie for the undying affection of beautiful men, the women are painted as crazy, crass, materialistic and cat-fighting. They're offered fantasy suites and couples massages and picnics at sunset, but dismissed as tramps if they have sex with their suitors.

It's hard to even hate watch.

On Schumer's Comedy Central show, "Inside Amy Schumer," meanwhile, she has been tackling the Bill Cosby allegations, the absurdity of the Hooters restaurant chain, video game misogyny, football's rape problem and Hollywood's rampant age discrimination, among other ripe-for-discussion topics. Surely she jests about breaking stride to be wooed with roses.

"A contestant like Schumer taking a gloves-off approach to her suitors could launch the series into a whole new level of cultural relevancy," writes Joanna Robinson at Vanity Fair.

Maybe. But I'd rather watch her take the gloves off for issues of gender and power, equality and justice.

"The Bachelorette," I'd rather see launched off a cliff.

Dims the Hawaiian glow

FAST PAISED

Matt Pais

» mpais@redeye.com
» @mattpais

These are real lines of dialogue from “Aloha”:

“Tell me you don’t believe in the sky.”

“You’re not going to pick my brains; they’re unpickable.”

“You sold your soul so many times no one’s buying anymore.”

“I’m just making sure we’re still alive.”
“Are we?”

Eek. It reminds me how my favorite journalism professor at U. of I. said that every time he sat down to write, he feared that he wouldn’t be able to produce at a level anywhere near his best. Cameron Crowe should know something about this—the writer-director’s first effort since 2011’s cutesy yet affecting “We Bought a Zoo” operates on cuteness overload, attempting to manufacture Crowe’s trademark sentimentality only through cloying, artificial sweetener. It gets dangerously close to unintentional self-parody.

Aloha

Bradley “My Much-Younger Love Interests Should Be Playing My Kid Sister” Cooper stars as Brian, who returns to Hawaii after leaving the military for a contracting job that resulted in a leg injury of minimal consequence. It’s been 13 years since he’s seen his ex, Tracy, (Rachel McAdams), who has married non-communicative soldier Woody (John Krasinski) and had two kids, the younger of which (Jaeden Lieberher of “St. Vincent”) has the inside track as the summer’s most instantly grating character. Fixated on Hawaiian myths, the kid’s a goeey moppet that makes Jonathan Lipnicki’s irresistible tyke in “Jerry Maguire” seem both credible and badass by comparison.

Likewise, “Aloha” is obsessed with myth but devoid of understanding and mystery. It fumbles through the relationship between

Rachel McAdams and Bradley Cooper in ‘Aloha’

Brian and Allison (Emma Stone, also Woody Allen’s current muse for May-December stuff), the Air Force officer who volunteered to supervise him during his poorly depicted latest assignment. She’s a tough cookie on the outside but a soft, borderline unprofessional, inevitable love interest on the inside—their banter makes you wish theater seats came with fast-forward buttons.

Though occasionally injected with energy (Alec Baldwin’s valuable supporting turn as a hot-headed general), the charmless “Aloha” prefers everything wishy-washy—its half-hearted love triangles, its shallow concept of privatized space exploration, its flattened idea of Hawaii and its people. Crowe, whose “Almost Famous” is one of my all-time favorites, is both stuck in his comfort zone and out of his element, overwriting unnatural conversations with too many words, and the wrong ones. He’s also repeating previously explored ideas about lonely men at a professional crossroads, this time with the pop and flavor of five-year-old gum.

15 acts we're excited to see at Riot Fest 2015

By Josh Terry and Matt Pals | REDEYE

An unexpected move to Douglas Park won't stop Chicago's Riot Fest and Carnival, which Wednesday night announced its first wave of acts for its 11th incarnation. And hoo boy, is this bill a doozy or what?

Plus, shout out to organizers for bringing a wealth of local acts like Alkaline Trio, The Academy Is..., Psalm One, Alex Wiley, Flatfoot 56, White Mystery, Into It. Over It., Meat Wave, the Lawrence Arms and semi-local dudes Real Friends, the Brokedowns, Knuckle Puck, Direct Hit! and more we're probably missing.

Here are our 15 favorite acts announced so far.

AGAINST ME!

Was unlucky to miss this band's last tour in support of 2014's amazing "Transgender Dysphoria Blues." Not this time, bad luck! —JR

BEACH SLANG

This rising Philadelphia-based band has so many good lines you could make a whole Tumblr out of 'em. Oh, wait, that already exists. —JR

CAYETANA

When I saw this also-Philly-based band open for PUP, Lemuria and the Menzingers last year, I couldn't stop talking about it. Almost a year removed from its debut album "Nervous Like Me" and I still won't shut up. —JR

DRIVE LIKE JEHU

I thought I was so cool in high school jamming out to "Yank Crime." Haven't heard of these recently reunited legends? Haha, nerds. —JR

DOOMTREE

The lesser-known Minneapolis rap collective that's not Rhymesayers is good on record and commanding in concert. —MP

ECHO AND THE BUNNYMEN

Many probably first heard this band on the "Donnie Darko" soundtrack. —JR

HEEMS

Still can't stop listening to "Eat. Pray. Thug." Himanshu Suri made one of the most important records of the year that basically no one talked about. —JR

INTO IT. OVER IT.

Local Evan Weiss' Into It. Over It. band is sure to have its introspective songwriting and memorable lyrics be a festival highlight. —JR

IGGY POP

I grow up being a garage rock-loving kid in Michigan, home of the legend himself. Of course this is a highlight. I hope he plays "The Idiot" in full because I am a weird Iggy Pop fan. —JR

THE JOY FORMIDABLE

The Welsh trio hasn't quite reached mega-stardom as expected. Yet. —MP

THE LAWRENCE ARMS

I'm placing this local band here not because Brendan Kelly occasionally bartends at my favorite dive, the GMan Tavern, but because "Oh! Calcutta!" is one of my favorite punk albums of all time. —JR

MANCHESTER ORCHESTRA

The Atlanta band is a fire-breathing monster truck on stage. —MP

MOTORHEAD

Watch the documentary "Lemmy" first if you need to. The metal frontman is a legend. —MP

POST MALONE

When I wrote about the "Song of the Summer" this week, Post Malone's hit "White Iverson" just barely missed the cut, and now I'm happy I get to write about it. —JR

SNOOP DOGG

I'd pick this as a recommended party regardless. That Snoop D-O-Double-Gizzle is performing his star-making album "Doggystyle" takes this to another level. —MP

ALBUM REVIEW

At Long, Last. ASAP
ASAP Rocky

By Josh Terry

REDEYE SOUND BOARD

ASAP Rocky isn't the best rapper, but the Harlem-based MC has more than compensated with unbridled confidence and boasting an all-encompassing aura of "cool." On his breakthrough 2011 mixtape "Live. Love. ASAP," Rocky (born Rakim Mayers) announced, "I be that pretty mother[bleep]er" and proceeded to navigate blog buzz and Internet stardom to land a major label deal—resulting in his debut album 2013 "Long. Live. ASAP" and a mainstream crossover hit with a Chainz in "[Bleee] Problems." For his new album, "At Long, Last. ASAP," however, there are no radio-ready tracks or crowd-pleasing pandering. Instead, the album is an adventurous, 18-track opus that focuses more on setting a dark and moody atmosphere than starting a party.

With collaborators ranging from executive producer Danger Mouse, Rod Stewart (!), Lil Wayne, M.I.A., the late Pimp C, unknown singer Joe Fox (who appears on five tracks!) and countless others, the whole product's cohesiveness is astounding. The production is uniformly pristine; particularly noting the bubbling, orchestral backdrop of the all-sung highlight "LSD," the Yeezy-soul of "Jukebox Joints" (on which Kanye West himself guests), and the surprisingly effective Lucero sample on opener "Holy Ghost," every composition is immaculately rendered. While no MC has more swagger behind the mic than Rocky (just hear his ad-libs on the Lil Wayne-assisted "M's" or his grimy charisma on "Lord Pretty Flacko Jodye 2 (L.P.F.J.2)"), he really doesn't say much as his inexplicably southern drawl clashes against his "so-New York" persona. From a disgusting kiss-and-tell line about Rita Ora on "Better Things" to endless fashion references and ridiculous boasts, Rocky's unabashed bravado clouds his opportunity to be a sympathetic figure. Though "Excuse Me," arguably the album's best track, finds Rocky's always-slurring voice more than on-point. Here, he changes up his flow and inflection to master a gorgeous string- and piano-based beat.

"A.L.L.A." runs a bloated 67 minutes and has an often-corny reliance on "screwed" (or pitch-shifted) vocals. But Rocky's unfailing vision and tasteful execution more than gloss over the missteps. After all, few, if any, rappers have the foresight to enlist artists as disparate as Rod Stewart, Mark Ronson, Miguel, Dan Auerbach and Mos Def for a single song (the awesome "Everyday") and make it work exceptionally well.

HOT DATE JUNE 1

That's when Tracy Morgan (and his lawyer) will sit down with Matt Lauer on "Today," Variety reports. The interview will be Morgan's first public appearance since he was seriously injured in a deadly highway crash last year. Morgan reached a settlement with Wal-Mart this week in a lawsuit related to the crash caused by a Wal-Mart semi-truck.

HOT DATE SEPT. 28

That's when "Daily Show" correspondent Trevor Noah takes his seat at the big boy desk, Comedy Central announced Thursday. Jon Stewart's replacement will kick off his "new and sexy" show (according to a video accompanying the announcement) after Stewart signs off Aug. 6.

THE DIGIT 40

DUH dum, DUH dum, DUH dum. Hear that? It's the ominous sound of shark attack classic "Jaws" splashing back to theaters for its 40th anniversary, ew.com reports. The Steven Spielberg-directed thriller, which first kept vacationers out of the water in 1975, will screen in nearly 500 theaters nationwide June 21.

Sleepover at Conan's!

You can't always be sure what you're going to get with an Airbnb rental, but according to The Verge, one recent listing would probably be pretty sweet. Especially if you're a Conan O'Brien fan. The vacation rental site is playing up a contest for one lucky traveler (and a guest) to win a one-night stay in the rafters of the comedian's Burbank studio. "Be prepared," the listing reads, "Conan will talk to you during a real show. So viewers will see you that night on their TVs, and millennials will see you the next day on their infernal devices. Warning: Contestants who are allergic to wood or wood products should not enter this contest." Contestants must apply by Monday, so get a move on!

"I send emails and text messages to about five people. Other than that, it's absolutely zero. I'm very frightened of saying anything. I scare myself. I don't want to put anything out there that could misrepresent my feelings. If I had Instagram, it would be pictures of my son, who is a cat. That's mostly what's going on with me."

—"SNL's" Kate McKinnon, in a Hollywood Reporter round-table discussion with fellow female comedians Amy Schumer, Gina Rodriguez, Ellie Kemper, Lena Dunham and Tracee Ellis Ross
